A CHILD's FARE.-In the Highlands of Scotland there is a mountain gorge 28 feet in width and 200 feet in depth. Its perpendicular walls are bare of vegetation, save in the crevices, in which grow numerous wild flowers of rare beauty. Desirous of obtaining specimens of these moon tain beauties, some scientific tourists once offered a Highland boy a handsome gift if he would consent to be lowered down the cliff by a rope, and would gather a little busket full of them. The boy looked wistfully at the money for his parents the money for his parents.
